THREE NURSES
GIVEN DIPLOMAS

Dr. H. M. Miller Says Idea of Making Money Alone is Disastrous.

Three young women received their diplomas of graduation from the Epworth hospital training school Monday evening, with fitting exercises at the First Presbyterian church.

Dr. H. M. Miller gave the address of the evening, giving a brief talk to the nurses on general health and the vital importance of studiously carrying on their chosen work.

He said in part: "Unless you enter your new work with the idea that 'happiness lies in the absorption in some vocation which satisfies the soul' as the great working principle of your lives, you will not measure up to your possibilities, nor will you be happy in any true sense. If you find that your vocation does not satisfy your soul, but only satisfies a living, then give it up, enter a trade and be happy."

"Just here I want to protest against the all too common practice of inviting young women to enter the nursing profession with the alluring bait of a good living. Just as we try to get young men into the ministry for the same reason, I say with all reverence, God help the girl who becomes a nurse with the idea of making money. I can imagine no more miserable creature."

Dr. Miller named four essentials in the success of a nurse: "Good health, large hearted love of humanity, a well developed sense of humor and a good technical training."

"To nurse means to serve, and to be worth while the service must be given unselfishly and ungrudgingly, and such service only is possible for those who have a great love of humanity in their hearts."

Dr. C. A. Lippincott, president of the hospital board, presented the diplomas to Miss Inez Hepler, Miss May Wentland, both of South Bend, and Miss Eva Coughman of Buchanan, Mich. Mrs. J. A. Rode favored with a group of songs. An informal reception for the nurses was held after the program.

EFFICIENCY MARKS
DAYTON CITY RULE

J. M. Switzer Will Explain System of Ohio City at Elks' Temple Wednesday.

The advantages of the Dayton plan of city government will be given in detail in an illustrated lecture by J. M. Switzer at the Elks' temple at 8 o'clock Wednesday. Mr. Switzer is a member of the city commission of Dayton, O., and shows by stereopticon slides, the interesting facts and figures the results in that city.

Leading up to the points that are emphasized and the results actually accomplished, are pictures of how inventions along the line of steam, resulted in a modern city.

Dayton is a manufacturing city and Mr. Switzer makes it clear that when they began to look for efficiency and economy in city work, that turned to their industries where the great progress had been made toward efficient results. He states that it was for this reason that they endeavored to secure a business plan of government and finally decided to organize the city work somewhat along the same line as that of an industrial organization.

As the board of directors employs the best man that they can get to act as general manager of the business, and looks to him for results, so the city commission employs a man, who is fitted by training and experience for getting the best results, in the position of city manager. This centralizes authority and fixes responsibility, so that there is no question as to where to look for results. Another great advantage of this form of government is that there are no frequent election changes to interfere with the progress of work that may be planned and carried through.

Mr. Switzer makes clear the difference between the "commission form of municipal government" and the "commission manager form." Dayton, he said, had the latter which he held was a step in advance of the former. He tells a number of the ends attained.

They had in Dayton, with H. M. Waite as city manager, each year a budget prepared and subjected to the public scrutiny of every taxpayer. It set forth what the city's income would be for the next year. It apportioned among the various departments the several amounts which would come to them and they were compelled to keep within the limit. The city would not issue bonds to pay for operating expenses. In a word the city would do just what every successful corporation does—live within its income.

MANUAL TRAINING TO BE TRIED IN SUMMER

Innovation to be Attempted by the School Board for Present Term in Curriculum.

An innovation, as far as the summer school curriculum in the South Bend public institutions, is to be tried this summer, following a decision reached by the board of education last night. A manual training department in the Kaley building, which will accommodate between 35 and 50 boys, will be run in connection with the usual school courses. Lynn McKee of the industrial arts department, will be in charge.

Coal bids were received last night by the board, but the contract will not be let until next Monday evening. Seven bids in all were received. Further elimination of the applicants for the position of high school principal were made, but no decision was reached, according to William Clem, board member. Gradual weeding out of the applications will be continued for several weeks, it is expected, before a definite choice is made.

A committee of five from the Perley school district appeared before the board, advocating certain changes in the work being carried on in the Perley building. The chief objection of the committee was a criticism of the discipline maintained. No action was taken by the board last night, but consideration was promised with a view to correcting the evils.

The Lost and Found department of the Want Column is noted everywhere for its efficiency in returning lost goods to owners.

"PREPAREDISTS" EXPECT THE WORKING CLASS TO DO
THE FIGHTING.

Editor News-Times:
It is one thing to write vitriolic editorials, make fiery stump speeches, march down well-paved streets, from rows of admiring (?) spectators, call upon the government to squander millions for the enrichment of the steel and powder trusts, and quite another thing to shoulder a rifle, live in trenches alive with vermin, and make oneself a target for the bayonet or to be torn to pieces by shrapnel or machine gun.

Talking "preparedness" and doing the work caused by "preparedness" are now recognized as two absolutely different things.

That is always the test. Pass out an enlistment blank to the man who is talkatively patriotic and belligerent, and you will discover that what he means by "preparedness" is sitting at home and cheering the "boys" who enlist to do the real work.

The loudest demands for war with Mexico came from Wall st., which is willing to have your boy to die of fever and bullet, in order to retain its hold on mineral concessions in Mexico, and it is only natural that it is willing to spend its blood-soaked war profits to stage "preparedness" parades to intimidate congress into voting for militarism.

Hugh Elliott, in The Hibbert Journal—the Oxford quarterly review—says: "Militarism is not due to any form of philosophy. It is not a mere aberration of thought; it is a total negation of thought. The psychological characteristics of all mobs are an intensification of emotion, combined with a suppression of intellect." In other words, the most convincing proof of one's lack of intelligence will be to be caught marching with the organized mob of war-profit and labor-suppressing "preparedists."

A dance and social evening will be held next Monday night. Four applications were received and one candidate admitted at last night's gathering.

THIEF ESCAPES WHILE OWNER LOOKS FOR GUN

Daylight Robber Enters Home of W. M. Myers and Gets Purse With Cards and Money.

When Wilbur M. Myers stepped into his home at 1229 Tecumseh av., Monday evening, it was to confront a thief, who had evidently entered but a moment before. The intruder was armed and made his escape while Myers was looking for a gun. The police were notified and Motorcycle Officer Wesolek and Detective Lane went to the scene, followed later by other patrolmen, but the burglar had made good his escape.

Apparently the thief had timed his actions with the greatest care. As Mrs. Myers left the house at 5:02 o'clock, and her husband arrived at 5:10 o'clock, giving the thief only five minutes in which to enter. Although he was scared away before finishing his job, he managed to take with him a purse containing a card case and a couple of dollars.

The police made a thorough search of the neighborhood, but found no trace of their quarry. He is described as about 30 years old, tall, light complexion, smooth shaven, and wearing a light suit and a brown cap. It is thought likely that he will be apprehended before he can escape from the locality.

MOTHER RECOVERS
HER LOST BOY

Lusty wailing filled the police station last evening when Officer Parker brought in a very much frightened little fellow he had picked up at Prairie av. and Tutt st. All efforts to bribe him to remain calm and silent failed, and it was only when he fell asleep in his protector's arms that the racket ceased.

An hour later his mother arrived and claimed her son. He proved to be Joe Kovacs, three years old, son of Emory Kovacs of 1417 Kendall st. He had wandered away from his mother before she had discovered his absence.
